Hongrond, October 13rm, 1880

THE political crisis at Peking, if it be productive of no other good, has, it would seem, taught the Chinese Government the value of a quick means of obtaining information. The system of couriers so long and, on the whole, so admirably maintained in China, has proved unequal to the requirements of the present day, and so deeply do the Peking Authorities appear impressed with the fact that an official has been sent from the capital to Shanghai to make inquiries as to the arrangements necessary for the construction of a line of telegraph between Peking and that port. The need of telegraphic communication must have been uncomfortably realised by the Chinese Government during the last few months, and it is not surprising that they should have determined to place themselves in immediate communication both with their Ministers abroad, and also to failed to take delivery according to the contract, hard labour. bring Peking within the telegraphic ring which now so nearly girdles the civilised world. At the present time the Chinese Government are placed at a disadvantage in the $3.10 per picul to $1.75. San Nicolo, at the mouth of the river, is however canable of being made into some sort of harbour and watering-place Prince Nikita will not have to leave his own dominions and establish himself at Cattaro for his summer holiday in future. With the application of energy and capital the Boyana may become one of the most important channels of commu nication between the Adriatic and the interior On its northern bank there are fine pastures where hitherto the Albanian Clementi have brought their cattle every summer. The line of Albanian nationality, according to Consul Sar the greatest living anthority on the subject, runs about halfway between Antivari and Dulcigno and with every mile from this point southwards the Albanian element of course increases. Other authorities, however, nut the Slavs at about 1.500, and just outside New Dulcigno (as it ought in strictness to be called), on the way to Skutari, there is a settlement of about 1,200 gipsies. New Daloigno itself mumbers about 5:000 inhabitants; of whom 3.500 are claimed as Mahommedaus. The Austrian press regards the cossion of Duloigno with anything but satisfaction. The extent to which the nearness of the new Montenegrin frostier threatens Skutari is indeed a point worthy of serious consideration and perhans, amendment. The hill called Tarabas, just outside Skutari, will be within the Montevegrin frontier, and from it, it is declared, the town will be within not only caunou but rifle shot. A suggestion has been made for cutting off a small strip from the territory conceded to Montenegro on this elde, and may possibly have been made bond fide. The Viennese journals, however, object to the cession for much more solid and definitely Austrian reasons than the safety of Skutari. The Neue: Freie Presse recalls the fact that it was Austria that kept the Montenegrius out of Dulcigno in 1878, and only allowed them to hold Antivari on condition of Anstria continuing to play the part of policeman along the Montenegrin litteral, of Spizza being given up, and of Montenegro binding herself to level all forts between Lake Skutari and the Adriatic and build no new ones. The Viennese ournal points of the forts that have risen at Antiveri, and souses Montenegro of breach of faith. The writer goes on to complain that peither Dulcigno nor San Nicolo can be controlled from Spizza. Austria must have six revenue ou ters on duty instead of two, and a man-of-war permanently stationed at Spizza as well. Cattaro, too, will be increasingly difficult to hold, in proportion as the Montenegria territory that oncloses it is enlarged. It would be impolite butnerhaps a little to the point, to ask, after all this, why Europe should be expected to defer always to Austrian, or what are to be supposed to be Austrian, interests, any more than it defers to those of Russia!—Pall Mall Gasette.

NGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the now words which the Chinese have to late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous ob-DIVIDEND paid to ALL CONTENBUTORS OF jects in machinery, photography, telegraphy and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises MARINE RISKS to all parts of the world, for students of a most instructive nature. Both payable at any of its Agencies. the Court and Punti pronunciations are given. the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, schieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characteristic Undersigned, Agents for the above

Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese charac. Who claimed a penny for my chair! MR. TOM TAYLOR. In the power and faculty for excellent fooling, which ran through every mood, from the grotesque to the pathetic, but with no faintest taint of coarseness, or malice, or unkindliness, and of luring all kinds of people to join in it, no one in our day has come near him. It was a faculty which had been kept much in restraint in early life, while he was fighting his way to independence through Glasgow and Cambridge, until he had gained the temporary haven of a Trinity fellowship. But his reputation as master of the revels had already begun to spread when he came to London in 1844 to read for the bar. So he was at once recruited by "The old stagers," who had just made the Canterbary week famous. With Join Doe and Richard Roe, the Hon. S. Whitehead, the Chevalier Esrom, the Smith family, and the rest of that unique band, he helped to make the little country theatre, and the long room at the Fountain Inn. a sort of central shrine of good wholesome English fun; pouring himself out in prologues, playbills, and squibs, many of which would well repay the zeal of any collector of good things who will hunt them up. It was for them that in 1846 he wrote the first piece which made his reputation as a dramatist, "To Purents and Guardians." And one of them (a contemporary at Cambridge, now a grave metropolitan magistrate) became his chum in the Temple, in the chambers where Thackeray deposited his wig and gown under their charge, and wrote up his name with theirs forer the door, in some vague expectation of possible professional benefits to accrue from that ceremony. The rooms were at 10, Crown Office-row, looking over the Temple-gardens and approached by a staircase from the row. They had also, as a double set, access to a back staircase leading into Hare-court. From which circumstance, and the jocose use which both Thuckeray and he made of it, the rumour spread of the impreuniosity of the trie, and of the shifts and stratgems for the manipulation of clients and the defeat of duns, which the second staircase enabled them to perpetrate, with the aid of their boys (the heroes of the farce "Our Clerks"). It may be said in passing, however, that there was not a shadow of foundation for such stories. No taint of Bohemia hung about him in this matter. He spent liberally what he earned, but nothing more.
